

Schuchart/Dow and Fulks Announce Merger

(Seattle, Wash.) – Schuchart/Dow and Fulks Incorporated, two leading builders of one-of-a-kind, architecturally significant residential projects, announced today that the companies will merge. This strategic partnership will bring together two of the most highly regarded builders in the Pacific Northwest. The merged entity will take on the Schuchart/Dow name, and Jerry Fulks will be brought on as a partner.

“Jerry brings more than 30 years of experience and wisdom to the Schuchart/Dow team,” said Jim Dow, Schuchart/Dow partner. “His deep industry knowledge and strong relationships in the community will be invaluable to Schuchart/Dow moving forward, complementing our team and substantially contributing to our ability to deliver the highest quality work to our clients. We are thrilled to have him as part of the team.”

Jerry Fulks started his company in 1974 and built Fulks Incorporated into one of the area’s leading residential builders. Partnering with the region’s top architects and designers, the company constructed an impressive portfolio of unique residences and small commercial buildings in the Pacific Northwest. As a partner at Schuchart/Dow, Fulks will be involved in both projects and business development.

“This merger essentially brings two great companies together to form one extraordinary company,” said Fulks. “This new team will be a formidable resource of talent that will be able to take on exceptional residential projects here in the Pacific Northwest as well as across the country.”
